

PRESS RELEASE

For immediate release

International Association of Drilling Contractors Presents 2008 Exemplary Service Award to Dominique Dupuis

Pride International executive recognized for drilling contribution

Houston, 30 June 2008 – The International Association of Drilling Contractors has presented Dominique Dupuis of Pride International with a 2008 Exemplary Service Award for his outstanding contribution to the advancements in the drilling industry. The prestigious award was presented at the World Drilling Conference and Exhibition held in Berlin, Germany on 11 June 2008.

Dominique Dupuis is Head of Drilling Engineering at Pride International in France and Vice President at Horwell (a Pride subsidiary). He worked for Forasol from 1977 – 1996 until Pride acquired Forasol-Foramer in 1997. Since that time Dupuis has held a number of key executive positions at Pride. He holds a mechanics degree from ENEM and in 1977 was awarded degrees for drilling technical courses from the French Petroleum Institute. Dominique is a long time member of the IADC/SPE Drilling Conference program committee, the IADC European Working Group and the Society of Petroleum Engineers (SPE). Today he also teaches at the French Petroleum Institute.

According to Dr. Lee Hunt, IADC president, "IADC is pleased to present Dominique with a 2008 Exemplary Service Award. His continuing support, industry insight and leadership have made a distinct impact on IADC efforts worldwide."

For the past 20 years IADC has recognized leaders who have made a difference in the drilling industry. The IADC Exemplary Service Award was designed to acknowledge those individuals that have made significant contributions to the industry over an extended period of time.

About IADC:

Founded in 1940, IADC strives to secure responsible standards, practices and regulations that provide for safe, efficient and environmentally sound drilling operations worldwide. To achieve its objectives, the Association holds a variety of meetings and conferences on technology, well control, contracts, taxation, management and other topics of interest to the global drilling and producing industry. Through its volunteers and professional staff, IADC also interacts closely with regulatory agencies and legislators worldwide on issues affecting the drilling industry. The Association is also a leader in developing new standards for industry training, notably through its Well Control Accreditation Program (WellCAP) and its rig-floor orientation program, RIG PASS. IADC is also a major publisher and distributor of reference manuals, forms and other publications for the global drilling industry. The Association communicates with the industry, government and the public through its newsletters and official magazine Drilling Contractor

For more information about IADC, please visit www.iadc.org.

Contact:

Linda Silinsky Kephart
International Association of Drilling Contractors
++1/713 292-1945
E-mail: linda.silinsky-kephart@iadc.org